The Philadelphia Nationals, champions of the Tener circuit last year, will open a three-game series against the Griffmen here this afternoon and local fans who have seen the Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves perform, can draw their own conclusions as to the relative strength of the National Leaguers.

Griff has decided to start young George Dumont against the Phillies, with Sam Rice held in reserve. Dumont will go the entire route if the strain is not too great, for he is in tip-top shape.

Pat Moran, who arrived with his club shortly before midnight, stated that he might work Al Dmaree part of the game, especially if the weather was warm. specially if the weather was warm.

Clash with Griffmen This Afternoon

As a matter of fact it was to be ex-pected that the home club would slump a bit after the training camp season, and there is every reason to believe that the team will return to form when victories really count.

With the Nationals' hitting slump comes a decided lack of "pep" and agressiveness which should be remedied are not showing their true form, especially at the bat, for with the exception of Milan and Foster, nobody on the club is hitting a lick. Joe Judge is in a big slump, not showing anywhere near the class in evidence late last summer or during the training camp days.

Let one.

Ed Gharrity behind the bat yesterday was the only member of the Nationals who showed signs of life.

Time was when the Griffmen were full of ginger and on their toes every minute.

A slump right now in hitting is nothing over which to be worried second base yesterday which gave the providing the club finds itself by the Braves a run. In the sixth inning Mctime the championship season opens Bride had Snodgrass plainly blocked next week.

Bride had Snodgrass plainly blocked off second base on one of Gharrity's lightning pegs, but Orth could not see it that way.

George Stallings used every possible combination within reach to win yesterday's game. He yanked out lefthand hitters when Boehling was in the box and made several other shifts in order to serve his purpose.

Stallings wanted that game badly and he got it, but we hate to think what would have happened if the Griffmen had been hitting up to form.

Sherwood Magee got credit for a cheap two-bagger in the eighth inning when his Texas leaguer to left field fell just out of everybody's reach. The Braves got two hits in that chapter, but were

A quaint fashion of advertising ball games, is in vogue at San Antonio. A picturesque darky employe of the Santone club rides a pony about the city on the day of the game, and announces the encounter after the fashion of the old town criers. After dwelling on such details as the opposing teams and the time of the game, he invariably adds:

"And all de crackerjacks, they'll all be theah. Ah don' know who's gwine to win this heah game, but in de shadow of de Alamo, all Texans fight."

It is unversally conceded among the baseball experts that the Phillies will have the most powerful pitching corps in the country if Bender is able to take his turn in the box this season and help Alexander with the relief work.

He did little pitching for two weeks after he went to St. Petersburg. His work consisted in chasing files in the outfield, fungo hitting, batting and golfing. This athletic diet put the Indian in the best physical condition that he has been in since 1913, and the prospects are that he will continue to keep in this fine shape all year and be of great assistance to the Phillies."

Southpaw Joe Boehling yesterday let out for the first time this season and made a miserable showing. His wildness cost two runs and when he was able to put the ball over he was batted hard.

BOSTON BRAVES

Stallings' National Leaguers Capture Exhibition Game by Score of 4 to 1.

BOEHLING IS HIT HARD

Beaneaters Get to Blond Southpaw in Ninth Inning for Enough Runs to Win.

By WILLIAM PEET.

The Boston Braves took advantage of Joe Boehling's wildness during the clos-ing chapters of yesterday's exhibition game to break the existing deadlock and put over tailies to win by 4 to 1.

Boehling for the first time this spring, Boehling for the first lime this spring, attempted to put a lot of stuff on the ball, with the result that he wag invariably in a hole and lucky to escape being scored against only four times. Doc Ayers, who pitched the first five chapters, was unhittable. The visitors got to Ayers for only one hit, a single by Compton in the third.

Dick Rudolph, considered the most deendable twirler in Stallings' stable touched up freely during the five In-nings he was on the mound. George Tyler, the veteran southpaw, who fin-ished the game, was very much of an enigma.

Manager Griffith shook up his catting order by benching Henri Rondeau and Turner Barber, playing Shanks in left field and Jamieson in right.

Ed Gharrity was behind the bat and turned back the only man who attempted to steal, besides leading the Griffmen with the stick, coming across with a coupl of safe swats.

It was off Rudolph that the Griffmen scored a run and incidentally averted a shut-out. The tally came in the second inning when Shanks, Jamieson and McBride laid down singles in turn and the first named crossed the plate on Gharrity's grounder to Maranville, forcing McBride at second base.

'After the second inning Gharrity, by virtue of Cleancest descriptions.

snowed that Griff's infleiders were in midseason form.

From the time Boehling entered the box in the sixth inning the Richmond southpaw was always in hot water. Three singles in this chapter and a base on balls tied the score.

Peacock Upsets the Talent; Breezes Home at $87 to $2

Bowie, Md., April 6.-The defeat of Servia in the second event at Prince George's track, and the victory of Er-nest Utterback's Peacock, at $87 to $2. were distinct shocks to the talent, as were distinct shocks to the taient, as the former was looked upon as a "cinch," while the latter was not given a look-in, but when it came to racing Servia was not there, while the Ut-terback representative was there with "bells" on at the finish of this race and running away from his field.

In the initial number on the card, Chemung, owned by H. McDonald, won as his rider pleased and was eased up at the finish to break the trong by two-fifths of a second.

Rose Juliet, racing in the colors of Paul Powers, annexed the following number by two lengths, beating Ida Claire, who in turn was a head in front of O 'Tis True.

Louise Travers, the red-hot favorite, was nosed out right at the finish by Quick, who was three lengths in front of Lord Wells.

Owner Shields had a real good day; he not only put two winners over, but his newly acquired apprentice, Jockey Willie Mackenzie, on his first mount for Shields breaking his maiden. Mackenzie has been trying to get home in front all winter, while in the employ of Dr. J. S. Tyree, the well-known sportsman, but without avail. Mackensie is a promising, gentleman-ly little chap and his many friends are pulling for him to make good. He is a product of Washington and lives in the northeast section.

Menlo Park captured the nightcap, easily disposing of Cockspur and Lady Spirituelle. Cockspur set a merry clip for the first six furlongs where he weakened, and Menlo Park, running in improved form, came from the rear to win in handy fashion. Summaries:
